I am Going to the Doctor

Here are some things that will probably happen while I am there…

I will go to the front desk so they know I am ready for my appointment.

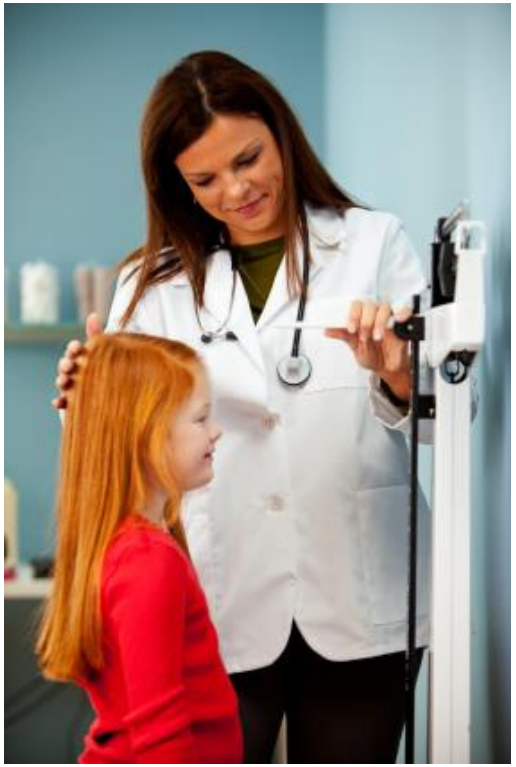

I will wait in the waiting room for my turn to see the doctor.

When it is my turn, I will go into the office with the nurse.

The nurse will weigh me.

She also might check how tall I am.

She will take my blood pressure.

She might give me a shot to keep me healthy. It might pinch but it will be over quick.

She will ask how I am feeling and take notes for the doctor.

Next, the nurse will leave and the doctor will come in.

He will ask how I am feeling.

He will look in my ears and throat.

He will listen to my heart with his stethoscope.

He will listen to my lungs with his stethoscope and ask me to take deep breaths while he listens.

If anything is bothering me, like my stomach, he might check that too.

On some visits, I might take a vision test to make sure I can see okay…

and a hearing test, to make sure I can hear okay.

Then I will check out at the desk and say goodbye.
